About the School

The Balsillie School of International Affairs (BSIA) is an institute for advanced research, education, and outreach in the fields of global governance and international public policy.

As a hub in a global network of scholars, practitioners and students, the BSIA aims to develop new solutions to humanity's critical problems, improve global governance now and in the future, and enhance the quality of people's lives around the world.

Founded in 2007 by philanthropist Jim Balsillie, the BSIA is an equal collaboration among the Centre for International Governance Innovation (CIGI), the University of Waterloo (UW), and Wilfrid Laurier University (Laurier). The collaborating institutions bring to the BSIA different but complementary strengths, so they have different roles and responsibilities.

The two universities employ BSIA faculty and offer BSIA's academic programs, while CIGI, as a think tank, uses its in-house expertise and its worldwide network of practitioners to help inform and guide BSIA's outreach and collaborative research. The BSIA is also the home to three research centres with an international profile - the International Migration Research Centre (IMRC), the Laurier Centre for Sustainable Food Systems (LCSFS), and the Canadian Network for Research on Terrorism, Security and Society (TSAS).

The unique integration of the collaborating institutions' approaches and cultures gives BSIA an unmatched ability to promote vigorous engagement across boundaries of discipline and practice, to connect today's experts with tomorrow's leaders in critical debate and analysis, and to achieve—in all its work—the highest standards of excellence.

Highlights of the Year

The year 2020 will undoubtedly be remembered by all in history. Despite the challenges which the COVID-19 global health pandemic brought to those across the globe, we are incredibly proud of the strength and resilience that the members of the wider BSIA community demonstrated in support of continuity, progression and – most importantly – the health and well-being of our colleagues during such uncertain and uncharted times.

I was thrilled to become the School's new Director in late August 2019, before the word "coronavirus" entered most of our vocabularies. An initial period of consultation with all internal and external BSIA stakeholders led to the development and endorsement of a 2020-2025 five-year strategic plan, which we have now put into action. The Plan reflects a truly consultative exercise, the endorsement of which is testament to the valuable contributions and iterative efforts of our staff, students, alumni, faculty and fellows.

In September 2019, we were delighted to welcome the School's largest cohort to date – a 24% increase from the previous year – across the MIPP, MAGG and PhD programs.

The BSIA continued to advance its internationalization strategy and deepen its global network of partnerships. The MAGG renewed its exchange partnership with the University of Konstanz for another five-year period, while the MIPP established a pathways program with the School of International Service at the American University in Washington, DC.

Research clusters continued to host leading scholars and thought leaders from the policy community, all of whom added richly to the School's research culture and networking opportunities. Eminent guest speakers included Karin von Hippel (RUSI, UK), David Crane (Founding Chief Prosecutor for Sierra Leone), and Peter Boehm (Senate of Canada).

We intensified our engagement with Ottawa and other international-based policymakers. More regular initiatives fostered a closer interface with our policy partners. These initiatives included the "UNAC-Balsillie Talks", which brought BSIA experts together with senior UN and Government of Canada (GoC) officials to debate current international policy challenges.

In efforts to expand the number of natural, material and life science colleagues at the BSIA, we were grateful to both Jatin Nathwani and Tim Elcombe for leading and building a new "STEM for Global Resilience" research cluster, with a mandate to facilitate critical debates on the social and policy implications of technology and innovation, and to Neil Arya and Jennifer Lui for developing a "Global Health" research cluster, to address critical health related challenges through research, practice, and policymaking.

The onset of the COVID-19 pandemic in early 2020 necessitated immediate pivoting. Within days of the GoC's March announcements encouraging all non-essential work to be undertaken remotely, the School's staff team shifted all operations from the School building to a virtual mode. Faculty worked hard to transition from classroom-based to asynchronous taught course delivery, and all functions – from meetings, teaching, seminars, Councils and events – went 'online'. The BSIA was grateful for the cooperation of all collaborative partners whose policies and procedures helped shape the procedures and protocols adopted by the School.

In efforts to support continued events and research dialogue, the School initiated "Global Insights" – a live, weekly interactive panel discussion which addressed current global policy challenges. The initiative brought together panelists from the BSIA's partner organizations in the UK, the US, Germany and Ethiopia to offer a weekly series which, through the benefits of Zoom, could engage BSIA and wider global audiences.

The School recruited a 'Research Coordinator' to support the BSIA's research outreach strategy and to work in close cooperation with the research offices at both UW and Laurier. We were delighted to welcome Scott Hamilton, a former Banting Postdoctoral Fellow at the School, into this role. Scott has already helped the research endeavour at the BSIA expand in scope, impact, brand recognition and partnerships, fostering a bright future for a new and growing BSIA Research Office.

The launch of the "Balsillie Papers" was amongst many research initiatives meant to expand both brand and impact. The first volume of this new concise, timely and peer-reviewed series addressed policy implications of COVID-19's various impacts.

Further pivoting took place over the summer months to support the ongoing professional development of our students. These opportunities included presentations from former BSIA graduates working in different GoC ministries, media training, and guidance on resume and interview preparation. In lieu of the annual International Studies Association conference, which had been cancelled from its March 2020 date, Tim Donais and Derek Hall organized a mini-ISA-type conference for our community.

The COVID-related cancellation of the MIPP/MAGG visit to Ottawa for the formal presentation of the GAC policy briefs did not take away from the quality of the group submissions, all of which welcomed strong and positive feedback from GAC officials. We were delighted that, along with some students publishing their final research as peer-reviewed articles, the project supervised by Neil Craik and Jinelle Piereder entitled "Shaping the Final Frontier: Canada and the New Space Race", was named one of the top ten finalists in this year's GAC/SSHRC International Policy Ideas Challenge.

Events across the world triggered by the "Black Lives Matter" campaign – and calls to end racism and oppression of all types – compelled the School to act urgently and substantively in support of a broader anti-oppression and equity agenda. Students, faculty and staff came together to inform the creation of an "Anti-Oppression and Equity Committee" and a number of initiatives supporting the prioritization and wider socialization of this agenda. These initiatives included the development of a new "Global Justice and Human Rights" research cluster, which officially launched in September 2020, for which we are grateful to both Alison Mountz and Jasmin Habib for their leadership.

We celebrate the ongoing outstanding and reputable achievements of our hard-working and dedicated team of BSIA scholars. Highlights amongst a very long list include Rianne Mahon's appointment to the Royal Society of Canada; Alison Blay-Palmer's UNESCO Chair in Food, Biodiversity and Sustainability

Studies; Eric Helleiner's International Political Economy Distinguished Scholar Award from the ISA; Suzan Ilcan's UW Award for Research Excellence; Andrew Cooper's Canada Research Chair; and Kim Rygiel's and Margaret Walton-Roberts' WLU Merit Awards. Also celebrated were the retirements of Jim Blight, Janet Lang, and Rianne Mahon.

Despite the pandemic, and all the challenges it introduced, I want to acknowledge the hard work of the faculty, staff and students in making this another outstanding year for the School. I look forward to seeing what more we can accomplish next year.

Global Insights Webinars

Global Insights, a weekly live-streamed, moderated panel series, launched in April 2020 as part of the Balsillie School's pivot from in-person events to online events. Its goal is to provide different national and regional perspectives on big questions facing researchers, policymakers and planners worldwide in light of the Coronavirus pandemic.

Global Insights features experts from the BSIA's partners: the Department of Politics & International Studies at the University of Warwick (UK); the School of International Service at American University (USA); the Institute of Strategic Affairs in Addis Ababa (Ethiopia); and the Department of Politics & Public Administration at the University of Konstanz (Germany) – all leading institutions in the study of international affairs.

The first season of Global Insights ran for eight weeks during the Spring term, and reached almost 2,000 viewers from 52 countries, with viewers from the United States, Canada and the UK accounting for just less than 1/2 of our audience. We were pleased to attract viewers from Albania, Bangladesh, Costa Rica, Estonia, Iceland, and Namibia, among many others.

Balsillie Papers

The Balsillie Papers launched in April 2020, to provide clear, concise, peer-reviewed articles about today's most complex issues in global governance and international affairs. In total, 11 Balsillie Papers were published during the spring and summer of 2020, which largely formed the first two Volumes.

Written predominantly by BSIA Faculty, Fellows, and students, the Papers have been well-received by policymakers and knowledge mobilizers. The Papers translate rigorous, inter-disciplinary research into succinct prescriptions aiming to solve humanity's most critical problems and improve lives around the world. Bridging sophisticated research with practice in a compact and digestible form, the objective of the Balsillie Papers is to provide a window into the intricate workings of international politics today.
